Education and health care are two fields that have seen tremendous advancement in recent past. The demand for professionally trained personnel in the large and growing field of Nursing and Para-Medical Sciences has transcended the geographical boundaries with some leading developing and developed nations turning to India for trained and qualified personnel in this sphere.

However it has to be conceded that the nation, as a whole, still lacks adequate no. of Para-Medical & Nursing Personnel to properly look after the growing health care needs of the masses and to maintain acceptable Health-workers & Population ratio. Now there is increasing demand for allied health personnel in health care and nursing health care organizations including hospitals & nursing homes etc who are today anxiously looking towards the universities and the vocational institutes to provide them with requisite nursing personnel. Hence serious and concerted steps need to be taken in this respect.

Our different technical units established under the umbrella of Ambedkar Group of Institutions have been for the preceding several years, imparting standard training programs in various useful vocational/ professional courses in Allied Medical, Para-Medical, Management, IT & other sectors being run under Govt. of India approved universities under distance education program.
